Making it Mobile

Interstuhl's new range of office furniture addresses the needs of the modern workplace.

The traditional office has changed considerably. The increasingly flexible way in which we do our jobs should be embodied in our workspaces and in the objects we use. A new range of office furniture by Interstuhl considers the rapidly evolving nature of the modern working environment.

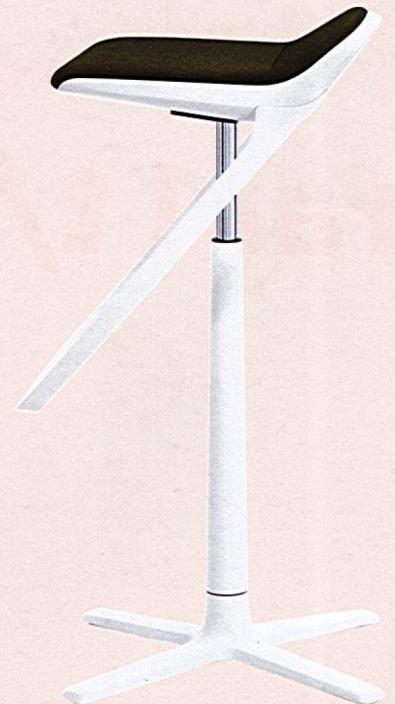

Meetings no longer occur solely around a boardroom table; they take place on laptops, over the phone and during chance encounters, such as coffee breaks. The KINETICis5 collection reflects contemporary requirements. Movable furniture by Phoenix Design has a simple, elegant aesthetic and is ideal for quick, informal meetings; pieces include a standing aid, a bar stool and a bistro table.

The NESTYis3 portable folding table system also references a less rigid office structure. It's designed for short brainstorming sessions as well as for meetings that go on a bit longer. Designed by Justus Kolberg, NESTYis3 is extremely stable, easy to transport and simple to store when not in use.

As indicated by its name, VINTAGEis5 is a conference chair that respects the need for a traditional touch, even in the most modern of office settings. Suitable for virtually any space and designed by Volker Eysing, VINTAGEis5 comes as a cantilever or conference model. The extremely ergonomic design provides good support yet doesn't look overly engineered. interstuhl.de
